New Delhi: In a key reform that seeks to bring a paradigm shift in human resource management of the civil services, the Union Cabinet on Wednesday cleared 'Mission Karmayogi' that will upgrade the knowledge and skills of civil servants on a continuous basis with the aid of modern technology and ensure that the right man with the right competencies is in the right position in government.

"A transformational change in civil service capacity is proposed to be affected by organically linking the transformation of work culture, strengthening public institutions and adopting modern technology to build civil service capacity, with the overall aim of ensuring efficient delivery of services to citizens," the ministry of personnel said in a press release.

The programme will ensure that the right person with the right competencies is in the right position

Under the National Programme for Civil Services Capacity Building, popularly called 'Mission Karmayogi', the capacity building will be through content to be made available to civil servants on integrated government online training (iGOT) platform, for a nominal subscription fee of Rs 431 each, payable to the special purpose vehicle (SPV) managing the platform. The initiative will benefit around 46 lakh Central government employees, by offering them access to content developed in partnership with premier world institutions like Harvard University, UC Berkeley and London School of Economics etc.
