Kannada and Culture, and Tourism Minister C T Ravi resigned from the B S Yediyurappa-led state Cabinet, days after being appointed as the national general secretary of BJP. However, according to CMO sources, the CM was yet to accept the resignation as a decision would be taken in consultation with the party high command.

Yediyurappa is learnt to have told Ravi to attend the national-level BJP officebearers meeting on October 5 and 6 in Delhi, after which a decision would be announced.

"I have resigned as it will be difficult to manage positions simultaneously," Ravi told reporters on Sunday. Noting that his priority was to fulfil the organisational role offered by the party, he said that a decision on his resignation was left to the high command.

Ravi said that he had tendered his resignation on October 2 and would attend the meeting scheduled in Delhi.

According to CMO sources, though Ravi's resignation letter was dated October 2, he met Yediyurappa on Saturday morning to submit his resignation. The CM is awaiting the directions of the BJP high command on the same, sources said.

Ravi had indicated that he would step down from the state Cabinet soon after his elevation in the party at the national level. His resignation also opened space in the Cabinet for CM Yediyurappa - who is under pressure to induct new ministers.

Ravi's resignation, when accepted, will increase the number of vacancies in the state Cabinet to 7, allowing the CM to induct more disgruntled leaders in the BJP to the Cabinet.
