Activist files plaint against social worker

Bengaluru: A human rights activist lodged a complaint with Cubbon Park police on Saturday against social worker Dinesh Kallahalli, seeking criminal action against him for defaming women. Kallahalli had claimed there were alleged sex dips of several ministers.

Kallahalli had been slammed by other activists who doubted his intentions. In her complaint, Mandya resident KH Indira said she suspects an organised syndicate operating behind men like Kallahalli, and women are becoming collateral damage in the political game of one-upmanship. "It looks like women are being misused in different ways and such exploitation should stop. Apart from facing social boycott, families of such women face life threats too. Without a doubt, these videos are released with vested interests," Indira said.

"Videos of the CD released by Kallahalli are all over and are affecting the minds of women and children. These days, kids are mostly attending online classes and have access to internet," she said.
