New Delhi: Leader of Tri-namool Congress in Rajya

Sabha Derek
O'Brien on Sunday denied that he had torn up the rulebook
as was being alleged and said the government didn't have numbers in the House to get the farm bills passed in a vote.

"If the government had the numbers, why didn't it allow voting on sending the bill to the select committee?
I suspect they did not have the numbers with BJD, TRS and SAD joining the opposition benches in asking for the bill to be sent to a select committee," O'Brien told journalists after the bills were passed.

He said the opposition had resolved three days ago to ask the chair to send the bills to a select committee since "such an important legislation had not been vetted by the member. He said he would resign from the P.S if he was found guilty of tearing up the rulebook. "I will resign my membership of the House if they can prove that I tore up the rulebook which I did not. I wish I had torn up the rulebook, because there are no rules any more," he said.
