* Gandhi statue to be moved out of Parliament
NEW DELHI
The seated statue of Mahatma Gandhi at Parliament is set to be shifted to a temporary location to make way for the construction of a new parliament building and would eventually be given a prominent place once the project is completed, government officials said. The construction of the new parliament building adjacent to the existing heritage structure is scheduled to start in December. But before the work starts, the Gandhi statue would have to be moved from its existing location opposite Gate Number 1 of Parliament House, officials said.
